Gina Huffman Joins the Cuyahoga County Board of DD as the General Manager of Information Technologies & Records

For immediate release April 15, 2016:

Gina Huffman has been named the general manager of information technologies and records for the Cuyahoga County Board of DD effective April 25, 2016. Huffman will replace Robbee Fallon, director of information technology (IT), who is retiring June 30, 2016. Huffman will be responsible for the overall planning, development and support of all technology functions and for managing and evaluating the Board's IT and records departments. She will report to John Parkowski, chief administrative officer.

Huffman brings more than 20 years of human services-related IT and leadership experience to this role. Her previous professional careers include serving as IT director at Applewood Centers and, most recently, as the information systems director at Beech Brook. Huffman has broad experience managing large projects, software upgrades and network functioning. In her previous roles, she gained knowledge on compliance activities, electronic records implementation and quality improvement initiatives. Her strong background in working with cross-functional teams at all levels is another asset she brings to the Board of DD.

In announcing her appointment, Parkowski said, "Gina possesses the experience, practical knowledge, and vision to further the Board's technology efforts into the future. Her belief in collaboration, communication and the integration of technology into the agency's daily operations will benefit all, especially as we respond to the transformative changes facing us and the entire DD system."

Huffman earned a bachelor's degree in English from Bowling Green State University and a MBA in international business and a project management certificate from Baldwin Wallace University.
